LOCATION Farmington, Utah
COURT JURISDICTIONS Criminal, Civil, Domestic/Family, Juvenile
PROJECT STATUS Planning phase, anticipated completion 2028

PROJECT VISION

The unification of three separate buildings into a single new structure seeks to centralize judicial operations, optimize resources, and provide a more cohesive and efficient legal infrastructure.

PROJECT DETAILS

The Davis County Second District Courthouse project in Farmington, Utah aims to consolidate three existing court facilities currently dispersed throughout the Second District into a single modern courthouse. The court is currently in the planning phase with an expected completion date in 2026. The new facility is expected to centralize court services and modernize court proceedings to include the addition of smaller cost-effective virtual courtrooms to conduct remote proceedings. In-custody access would be shared between the traditional and virtual courtrooms. It is envisioned that two judges would share a virtual and traditional courtroom. Mediation rooms are also planned to provide spaces to accommodate non-trial proceedings.

ENHANCING OPERATIONS AND THE OVERALL BUILDING EXPERIENCE

Embracing technology and incorporating virtual courtrooms align with the current trend toward online interactions and will ultimately lead to significant cost savings in the development of new court facilities, transportation, staff, and energy consumption. By centralizing court services into a single building, the project will enhance the efficiency and effectiveness of court operations and improve coordination and accessibility for court users.
