OVERVIEW
The Judicial Council of California is accepting applications for the position of Analyst for the Center for Families, Children & the Courts (CFCC), User-Friendly Rules and Forms unit.

This position is a unique opportunity to improve the public’s access to the courts and understanding of their court proceedings by developing user-friendly court forms. The Analyst is a key member of the team responsible for implementing legislation and policy by developing Judicial Council court forms, and for improving public access to the courts by establishing and managing a user-friendly forms research program. Responsibilities include developing protocols and obtaining policy level approvals; collecting relevant data to inform testing priorities; conducting usability testing; reporting findings and acting as a primary liaison to the Judicial Council forms management team as well as other internal and external stakeholders. This position also works with form authors (attorneys) and analysts to program interactive forms using Adobe Experience Manager (AEM) and implement the existing forms quality assurance and accessibility protocols.

The Judicial Council strives for work life balance and includes substantial vacation and holiday time. In addition, we offer an excellent benefits package including pension, medical, dental and vision coverage, flexible spending, $130 per month reimbursement for qualifying commuting costs, and retirement savings plans. In San Francisco, the office is only a 7-minute walk from the Civic Center BART station in downtown San Francisco. In Sacramento, the office is located minutes from downtown, just north of Discovery Park.

The successful candidate will be expected to work in the Judicial Council’s San Francisco or Sacramento office; hybrid work options for employees who live in areas surrounding these locations may be considered.
