About the Position

The Office of the Staff Attorneys is soliciting applications from practicing attorneys, law clerks, and third-year law students. Up to three successful candidates will be appointed to two-year Term Staff Attorney positions, beginning in Summer 2024. Contingent upon performance and budget availability, these positions are renewable for a second two-year term. In addition, the office has hired a significant number of term staff attorneys as career staff attorneys.

The Office of the Staff Attorneys

The office includes the Senior Staff Attorney, a Chief Deputy Staff Attorney, three supervisory staff attorneys, 18 staff attorneys (most of whom are career attorneys), a senior motions attorney, three motions attorneys, an administrative manager, and eight administrative staff. Staff attorneys have a wide variety of backgrounds; they come from clerkships, from other public sector employment, from private practice, and directly upon graduation from law school. The office prides itself on being a collegial and collaborative workplace.

The Work

The office functions as the court's central legal staff, serving the court at large rather than individual judges. The office's principal mission is to assist the court in the disposition of motions and appeals that are not orally argued. Staff attorneys review case records and filings, conduct extensive legal research and analysis, and prepare case-specific legal memoranda and proposed orders. They handle appeals involving a wide range of subject matter areas, including civil rights, employment discrimination, federal criminal law and sentencing, habeas corpus, immigration, and social security. A significant portion of the office's caseload consists of motions and appeals brought by pro se litigants, many of them prisoners.

Mentoring and Professional Development

New staff attorneys work collaboratively with experienced supervisory attorneys and are mentored by a career staff attorney. Term attorneys initially work on cases that are hand-selected by their supervisors. As they gain experience, term attorneys enjoy significant autonomy in managing their workloads within monthly production cycles. During their two-year term, new staff attorneys can expect to significantly improve their analytical and writing skills, develop insight into the judiciary, and better understand effective advocacy.

Term staff attorneys have gone on to become career staff attorneys or to work in the public sector as judicial law clerks, prosecutors, public defenders, and counsel for state and federal agencies. Others pursue private sector careers with law firms, nonprofits, and corporations. Some have entered academia.
