Our Latest Recommendation and Questions to Explore

Welcome back! We hope you enjoy our latest selection, Extending Justice: Strategies to Increase Inclusion and Reduce Bias.

From the Publisher:

Extending Justice: Strategies to Increase Inclusion and Reduce Bias offers expert perspective and actionable tools for interrupting bias. The first book in this series, Enhancing Justice: Reducing Bias, was written to increase awareness of implicit bias and serve as a benchbook for judges. This book goes the next step to be useful to a wider audience with virtually every chapter offering thoughtful context and practical strategies for interrupting unintentional bias.

- What thoughts or questions is this book intended to provoke?
- How does this book tie in with current events in your community and/or the U.S.?
- What are some actions you can take to combat systemic racism using the knowledge you gained from this book?

Many thanks to groups like the Access to Justice team at the Alaska Court System have incorporated selections from Watch, Read, Listen into their regular meetings. Staff have an opportunity to share reflections and other insights that can assist them in their daily work. The team also incorporates books that examine issues unique to Alaska's culture and history.

About Watch, Read, Listen

What It Is

The National Center for State Courts Blueprint for Racial Justice initiative has designed the Watch, Read, Listen effort to promote informal conversations about racial justice among you and your court colleagues nationwide.

Throughout the year, we will recommend a book, show, or podcast that addresses topical issues. When available, each suggested work will be accessible through various media to accommodate learning preferences and busy schedules!

What You Can Do

1. Watch the movie, TV show, or documentary; Read the book; and/or Listen to the podcast.
2. Discuss it with your court colleagues. We will provide questions to help start the conversation.
3. After doing the above, send us your thoughts/feedback by video, written message, or audio recording. (Contact Molly Justice to submit.) We will then feature several submissions on the Voices of Your Community section of our web page.
