Amy Bach will present the findings of her book Ordinary Injustice: How America Holds Court, which won several awards including the 2010 Robert F. Kennedy Book Award. The research for Ordinary Injustice took eight years to complete and involved sitting in courts and interviewing hundreds of lawyers to produce a study of hard-to-see problems in criminal justice systems across the country. The book’s final chapter is a call-to-action for citizens to begin to monitor and measure their local courts so that they can build political will to correct longstanding problems.

Since its publication a year ago, Ordinary Injustice has been made mandatory reading at many law schools, including Stanford, UCLA, New York University, Northwestern, and Syracuse. Amy Bach is a graduate of Stanford Law School. She lives in Rochester, NY and is currently a faculty fellow at the Institute for the Study of Judiciary Politics and the Media at Syracuse University. In January, she will be teaching a course on the Justice Index as a Visiting Professor at Syracuse College of Law.

Complimentary dessert will be provided!

---

Upcoming Presentation

The Silver Tsunami: The Creation and Offerings of the Center for Elders & the Courts

Brenda Uekert, Ph.D.
Susan Keilitz, J.D.
Theresa Jones, M.A.

October 28, 2010
NCSC EdTech Studio
12:00pm - 1:00pm